Ma'ruf Tafsin, born on November 26, 1967, in Pandeglang, Banten, is a highly dedicated scholar in animal husbandry. Raised by parents who work as farmers, Ma'ruf experienced his primary and secondary education in his hometown.

In 1986, he took the step to higher education by enrolling at the Faculty of Animal Science, Padjadjaran University. Ma'ruf completed his undergraduate studies with outstanding achievements, demonstrating his intelligence and learning spirit. The urge to continue to explore knowledge led him to continue his master's education at the Faculty of Animal Husbandry, Bogor Agricultural University, in 2000, deepening his knowledge in the field he loved.

The pinnacle of his academic achievement was when he completed his doctoral program at Bogor Agricultural University in 2007. With in-depth research and valuable contributions, Ma'ruf earned his doctorate in his passion, livestock nutrition and feed.

Since 1994 until now, Ma'ruf Tafsin has made his mark as an experienced and committed lecturer in the academic world. His focus on animal nutrition and feed has made him a respected expert in his field. His expertise is not only limited to teaching but also involves research and development of innovative concepts in the livestock industry.

With his tireless dedication, Ma'ruf Tafsin continues to contribute to improving the understanding and application of animal science, particularly in livestock nutrition and feed. His profile reflects an illustrious career path and a determination to continue inspiring and mentoring the younger generation in animal husbandry.
